

History of Philosophy Society

2nd Annual Meeting: Art and Nature

Texas A&M University, April 22-23, 2016

Call for Papers: Art and Nature

The History of Philosophy Society is accepting full paper submissions for our second annual conference. Papers should address the theme of “Art and Nature,” which can be taken in any of the multiple ways these two concepts are each construed, as well as the diverse ways they may be related. Typically, HOPS submissions focus on a single author, but essays treating multiple authors will be considered. Papers should be submitted for blind review (with author’s name, affiliation, and contact information on a separate title page). Papers should be no more than 40 minutes reading length.

Keynote Speakers:

Alexander Mourelatos, University of Texas

María Acosta, Depaul University

The History of Philosophy Society was established to support and encourage scholarship on the history of philosophy from diverse perspectives. Welcoming the richness of multiple traditions, HOPS provides a forum for phenomenological, deconstructive, feminist, hermeneutic, Straussian, and Anglo-American interpretations of texts and philosophers from ancient Greece through the 19th Century.

Please send submissions as an email attachment to historyofphilosophysociety@gmail.com, no later than January 15, 2016.
